

"It was shortly after this photograph was taken in 1958 that the Terminal Station had a date with the wrecking crew. But, in addition to giving a different perspective of the historic old building, this photograph shot from the old Hamilton Spectator building on King Street East shows Wentworth Motors located at the corner of Main and Catharine streets. Parking on the lot next to the Connaught Hotel was a most popular spot, with the rate set at 10 cents for the first half hour."
